Camping Night

One summer night, Sarah and her family went camping in the forest. They set up their tent near a sparkling stream and gathered wood for a campfire.

Sarah's dad showed her how to roast marshmallows on a stick over the fire until they turned golden brown and gooey.

As the sun set, the forest came alive with chirping crickets and hooting owls. Sarah and her little brother, Ben, listened in awe. They snuggled in their sleeping bags, feeling the cool breeze on their faces. Sarah's mom read them a story by flashlight, and soon they drifted off to sleep under the twinkling stars.

In the morning, Sarah woke up to the sound of birds chirping. She peeked out of the tent and saw the sun rising over the treetops, painting the sky in shades of pink and orange. It was a magical sight. After a hearty breakfast of pancakes cooked on a portable stove, they packed up their campsite and bid farewell to the forest.
